ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF POLITICAL SCIENCE AT LUND UNIVERSITY. HIS RESEARCH FOCUSES ON POLITICAL INSTITUTIONS, DEMOCRATIZATION, AND POLITICAL ECONOMY.

Join us for this public lecture examining how the conceptions of "democracy" among political elites have evolved over the past two centuries across twelve countries: the United States, United Kingdom, Canada, Sweden, Germany, France, Belgium, Portugal, Spain, Mexico, Chile, and Uruguay. Utilizing extensive legislative debate archives and word embedding techniques, the study uncovers a remarkable convergence towards liberal interpretations of democracy.
